Systems interacting for Social Protection delivery

Effective Digital Transformation in Social Protection

Digitalization makes Social Protection delivery much faster and more efficient - but...

to unlock their full potential, digital systems must be interoperable.

Interoperability means systems can communicate and interact with each other based on standards.

Interoperability Standards

The DCI develops standards for interoperability through a collaborative, multi-stakeholder process.

These standards establish common rules for how systems communicate, using common processes, data, and APIs.

Open standards for six interfaces have already been released and are ready to use – free of charge.
